The Paris subway, in Fran CIA. The Paris subway, in Fran CIA. The first line of the Paris subway was built just before the universal exposure of 1900. The net will guickly become more dense in intramural Paris until the Second World War. Most of the existing lines will be extended in the internal suburbs and will be completed since 1970 by the regional express network (RER). The Paris subway inaugurated a fully automated line, line 14, to relieve the burden for RER Line A. The line 1 is subsequently automated in 2011. An important project, the Grand Paris Express, is under construction since 2015 and It plans to build 200 km of additional lines by 2030. In the course of an attack in Paris, underground traffic is strongly disturbed with lines and stations partially open only at the point hours. For the Automatic Lines of the Paris Metro (Lines 1 and 14), traffic will be normal, but passengers suffer from saturation.
